

Assessment of Administrative Fines

A variety of offices may assess fines as part of regular management practices. These include, but are not limited to, parking fines, damage assessments in residence halls, book return penalties in the library, and service charges for returned checks in the bookstore. Assessment of these types are governed by departmental or University policy, and are outside the purview of the Code of Student Conduct. Questions concerning the assessment of such fines should be addressed directly to the department of origin.